- Bukit Cina. As the name implies, 'Chinese Hill' was the official settlement of the entourage that arrived with the Chinese Princess Hang Li Po. She was sent to Melaka by the Ming emperor to marry the Sultan, marking the advent of diplomatic relations between Melaka and China.
- Hang Li Po's Well. Built by the followers of Hang Li Po, the well was the only source of water during great droughts. The Dutch enclosed it with stout walls to reserve it for their exclusive use. Today, it enjoys a reputation as a wishing well.
- Dutch Square. Discover the Stadhuys, the Tan Beng Swee Clock Tower, Queen Victoria Fountain and Christ Church.
- Cheng Hoon Teng Temple. The oldest Chinese temples in the country. It was built in 1646 with materials shipped here from China. Fine workmanship is evident in the ornate decorated mythological figures, carvings, and lacquer work inside the temple.
- Jonker Street. Authentic artifacts and relics, some dating as far as 300 years, can be found among a host of interesting collectibles, each with its own history and mystery.
- Baba-Nyonya Heritage Museum. The ancestral home of three generations of a Straits-born Chinese Baba family. The building is now converted into a stunning museum that preserves the unique legacy of the Babas. The Babas combine Chinese and Malay culture, a result of marriages between early Chinese settlers and local Malay women. Over the years, a distinct culture called the Baba Nyonya or Peranakan culture emerged.

- Photostop at the Petronas Twin Towers in Kuala Lumpur – one of the world's tallest buildings.
